Northwest Territories this morning.

7 government stories since yesterday, 4 breaking.

5 TERRITORIAL 1 FEDERAL 1 INDIGENOUS

MLAs unanimously pass record $795-million capital plan for 2027-28

Ottawa covers $424 million, and $404 million goes to roads and highways. Finance Minister Caroline Wawzonek voiced concern about the plan's size given tight finances.

NOV 6, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

Leaders welcome highway funding but flag gaps in federal budget

The budget commits $3.1 billion to the Mackenzie Valley Highway. Premier RJ Simpson says it lacks a northern mineral exploration tax credit and a school funding fix.

NOV 6, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

Dene National Chief says infrastructure money misses most NWT communities

George Mackenzie welcomed the highway and Jordan's Principle funding. He says most of the $32 billion over 10 years for First Nations infrastructure serves reserves.

NOV 6, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

GNWT releases climate strategy aiming for net-zero by 2050

The 28-page strategy replaces the territory's 2030 energy and climate plans. Costs and details are left to a later roadmap.

NOV 6, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

Residential school repatriation bill clears second reading

Regular MLAs voted 9-0 on Nov. 5 to advance Bill 62, MLA Richard Edjericon's private member's bill, while cabinet abstained. It now goes to committee.

NOV 6, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

School support staff drop by a third after Jordan's Principle changes

Federally funded support assistant jobs fell from 205 to 137 in 2025-26. Education Minister Caitlin Cleveland wants certainty from Ottawa.

NOV 6, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

Health authority to get new public administrator in December

Dan Florizone's 2-year term ends in December, and deputy minister Alan Doody will serve on an interim basis. The GNWT wants a qualified NWT resident next.

NOV 5, 2026

Source: Cabin Radio.

That was Northwest Territories at 5:00 a.m.

Events that fill. Campaigns that win. We plan conferences, AGMs and campaign announcements across Canada.

Book a 20-minute call